THE GRATEFUL UNDEAD

HIPPIE DEMONS TIE-DYED IN BLOOD

Written and Directed by Patrick May and Allen Riley

Made in 2006-2007

90 minutes

They were so stoned they forgot to die!

Synopsis: A psychedelic and gory romp through the 90's depicting the clash between the hippie generation and the slackers they spawned.

This is a feature film created by amateurs using public access equipment. Unlike most amateur films, it was shot over the course of two weeks of continuous production, and, also unlike most amateur films, it was completed. It is a dingy and unmitigated account of independent filmmaking in the real world. No producers, no managers, no advisors, no assistants, no pandering, no money, no control, no excuses - only the will to do something instead of nothing.
